

GLEN EINICH

Distance	Ascent	Time	Difficulty
27.3km	468m	1.5-2.5 hours	Moderate

Surface

A mix of land rover track and well-constructed wide pathways with a section of fairly rough single track where the track reaches the river, but this can be avoided by following a higher land rover track at the cost of some additional climbing.

Hazards

River Crossings – there are a number of fords on the route and the ford across the Beanaidh Bheag can be particularly difficult to cross if the river is in spate.

Start

Car park at Inverdrue

Finish

Car park at Inverdrue

Beyond the point at which the two paths re-join (NH 925 048) the glen broadens and the Caledonian pine forest is replaced by open moorland. The track provides good going, but crosses a number of fords across tributaries to the main river, the Am Beanaidh. Under normal conditions these fords can be crossed without too much difficulty, but are a different proposition if the rivers are in spate.

Loch Einich, ringed by high peaks, remains hidden to view until almost the last minute.

Retrace the outward route to return to the start point.
